Limited information on file

Dr. John Callaghan (1923-2004)

John Carter Callaghan was born in Hamilton, Ontario in 1923. As a child he was fascinated by the structure and function of the human body. One of his most treasured possessions was a copy of Gray's Anatomy. At the age of 14, John Callaghan was busily dissecting animal hearts and lungs purchased from the local butcher shop. Predictably his interest led him to the study of medicine and he graduated from the University of Toronto in 1946 as an M.D.

He spent a year as Junior Rotating Intern at Toronto General Hospital before becoming Demonstrator in Anatomy at the University and part-time Medical Officer at Lynhurst Lodge, Toronto for another year. From 1948 to 1949, he was Medical Officer for the Department of Indian and Eskimo Affairs at Aklavik, N.W.T., then became a Research Fellow at the Banting Institute in Toronto. With Dr. W. G. Bigelow, Dr. Callaghan developed a method of hypothermia that is now routinely used in all open-heart surgery.

During 1949 to 1950 Dr. Callaghan was the co-developer of the world's first cardiac pacemaker, an intravenous device that has restored the rhythm of the slow or uneven heartbeat of millions of people all over the world enabling them to lead normal lives.

In 1950, he became Senior Intern at Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto. From 1951 to 1954, he was Assistant Resident in Surgery, Assistant Resident, Senior Resident and Fellow in Cardiac Surgery at Toronto General Hospital, after which he went to England as Assistant to Sir Russell Brock at Guy's Hospital in London. In 1955, Dr. Callaghan was appointed Fellow in Surgery by Stanford University and moved to the University of Alberta where he became Lecturer in Surgery. In 1958, he was appointed Assistant Clinical Professor of Surgery and Head of the Division of Cardiovascular and Thoracic Surgery.

Over the years, Dr. Callaghan has carried out extensive research in various areas such as infant resuscitation and heart defects, valvular replacements, heterograft valves, assisted circulation, artificial placentas, bloodless perfusion and vein grafts, to name but a few. He has co-authored three books and has published well over 100 scientific articles in professional journals.

In 1956, Dr. Callaghan performed a number of Canadian firsts in heart surgery, including the first open-heart surgery and the first successful complete repair of the blue baby malformation. He was responsible for developments in open heart surgery that have received international acclaim and the high level of his abilities in the field of cardiovascular surgery have resulted in operations that have saved many lives, not only of mature heart disease patients, but of infants born with congenital heart defects.

Dr. Callaghan has been an examiner, specialty of Cardiovascular Surgery for the Royal College of Physicians of Canada, and is past president of the Canadian Society of Cardiovascular and Thoracic Surgeons. He is also Past President of the Western Thoracic Surgical Association, an American society of chest and heart surgeons, and is past president (and only Canadian member) of the prestigious Lyman Brewer III International Surgical Society which is comprised of distinguished surgeons from France, Switzerland, United States, England, Japan and China. As president of this Society, in 1981, Dr. Callaghan headed a group of prominent surgeons to inaugurate the first international heart and thoracic meeting ever held in the People's Republic of China.

Among the honours received by Dr. Callaghan are: the Lister Prize in Surgery and the Reeve Prize in Surgical Research from the University of Toronto 1949-50; the Alberta Achievement Award for Excellence in medical research from the Government of Alberta 1983; Citizen of the Year, City of Edmonton 1984; Honourary Chairman, Alberta Heart Foundation 1984; Distinguished Scientist Award, North American Society of Pacing and Electrophysiology 1985; Officer of the Order of Canada 1985.

Dr John C. Callaghan passed away at the age of 81, on April 6, 2004.

*(Dr. Callaghan was inducted into the Alberta Order of Excellence in 1986
This biography has been excerpted from the program of that induction)*

BUTTERCUP FARM PARK

Site location

The park, triangularly shaped is situated between 58 and 60 Streets, approximately seventy-five feet north of 112 Avenue and continues to 113 Avenue.

Articles/newspaper clippings

The article is part of an issue of the Highlands Historical Society and used with the permission of the author, Dave Brooks, related more to the family than the farm. The farm, however, is mentioned.

Awards/citations

Not applicable

Description of Theme, if applicable

This would be a suggestion rather than a description....the naming plate should (?) be at the south end of the park, facing south. A large bed of perennials, yellow in colour would be appropriate. The remainder of the park is in good condition. A suitable plaque, in bonze (?) could be place near the name.

The following is offered as a suggestion...

Buttercup Farm was noted for and named after, the display of yellow flowers that in the early 1900's ran along what is now the west side of 57St. The farm lands stretched from between the west side of 57 street and the west side of 60 Streets and from 112 to 118 Avenue. Cows and chicken were kept on the farm. A tennis court was also developed.

The farm was occupied at different times by the Smith, Craig and Wheeler families. The original farmhouse is located at 11243-58 Street, and is occupied now by Mrs. Vickie Wheeler, widow of Gordon...
