

Calling All Snow Angels - Winter is Coming

Winter is coming, and with it, the first heavy snowfall. The City of Edmonton's Snow Angels program is inviting you to don your snow-shovelling battle gear and help those in need of assistance shovelling their snow, like a senior or person with disabilities.

Snow that remains on sidewalks is hazardous for everyone, but especially for people with limited mobility who may be severely injured from a fall on ice or snow. Adopting the sidewalk or driveway of a neighbour this winter will not only help keep everyone safe but will give you the satisfaction of knowing you helped someone in need.

Do you already have a volunteer that shovels your walk? Help them get their wings by nominating them as a City of Edmonton Snow Angel. If nominated, your volunteer will receive official recognition from the Mayor, be entered to win monthly prizes and will also receive tickets to see the Oil Kings at Rexall Place thanks to the program's continued partnership with the Edmonton Oil Kings.

For more information on the Snow Angels awareness and recognition program, visit edmonton.ca/snowangels or call 311.
