City expands summer daycamps

Busy parents and kids who crave adventure will have more options this summer. The City of Edmonton is expanding its summer daycamps at facilities and in the River Valley for children between 3 1/2 and 17 years of age. Availability at these camps has increased by 30 percent for 2014.

The new camps include Little Acoms, a selection of half day nature camps for kids between 3 1/2 and 5 years old.

For youth between 13 and 17, volunteer positions are also available.

Registration is now open online and through 311 for camps held in City recreation centres and attractions around Edmonton, as well as River Valley parks.

For more information call 311 or visit:
