April is coming up roses at the Muttart Conservatory

One of the world's most popular flowers is the centerpiece of the Muttart Conservatory's new feature pyramid: Kissed by a Rose. Visitors can stroll past luxurious blooms and share a special moment on a marble bench or beneath a delicate gazebo. Those who are inspired by the romantic surroundings can ask about renting the space for a classically beautiful photo shoot.

There's a special event for families later in the month when the Muttart Conservatory celebrates Easter.

Easter Sunday at the Muttart Conservatory

Date: Sunday, April 20, 2014

Time: Noon – 4 p.m.

Location: Muttart Conservatory, 9629-96A Street NW

Admission: Regular admission fees apply

The Purple Team will be on site painting faces with all things Easter and spring, as Peter and Mary perform children's shows in Centre Court. Guests will be able to go on an Easter hunt through the pyramids, reward themselves with tasty treats, and take home a special "egg" plant as a memento of the day.

On April 22, be sure to stop by the Muttart Conservatory to wish Putrella the Corpse Flower a happy first birthday. It's been a year since she stunk up the room with her stunning debut and she has big things in her future.
