Urban Recycler dishes the dirt on your waste

Edmonton residents will start receiving important waste-handling information in their mail this week.

The Urban Recycler newsletter contains a useful one-page guide to help residents sort household waste into recycling, garbage, and Eco Station streams. Also included are tips about how to reduce your waste by grasscycling, donating items that can be reused, and recycling electronic waste by taking it to Eco Stations.

Have you been wondering what to do with your dead batteries? How about empty windshield washer bottles? Interested in booking a free tour of the Edmonton Waste Management Centre? The newsletter answers these and many more waste-related questions.

The Urban Recycler will be distributed during the week of April 28th. If you have not received it by May 12, call 311 to have a copy sent to you or download it from edmonton.ca/waste.
