Plant for pollinators at John Janzen Nature Centre

Looking to spend a lazy summer evening outdoors getting dirty and making Edmonton a pollinator's dream getaway? Look no further than the John Janzen Nature Centre!

Date: Thursday, July 31, 2014

Time: 5:30 – 8:30 p.m. (Bonfire at 7 p.m.)

Location: John Janzen Nature Centre, 7000-143 Street, Whitemud & Fox Drive

Cost: Regular admission rates apply

Your whole family can help plant native trees, shrubs and wildflowers near the John Janzen Nature Centre pond to create a natural habitat for bees, butterflies, and other beneficial insects. After playing in the dirt, stick around for the bonfire, learn about Edmonton's native plant species and pollinators, and learn what you can plant at home to help bees, butterflies, and other bugs!

The Planting for Pollinators event is a Nature Centre initiative resulting from the TD Green Streets grant for the City of Edmonton.
