The City of Edmonton is hosting a community forum on energy and climate change on November 14, with tickets on sale today. Edmonton's Community Energy Forum: Inspiring Sustainable Action in Your City will discuss issues of energy transition, climate change and building a sustainable future. The conference will be the largest environmentally-themed public engagement event in the City's history.

Date: Saturday, November 14, 2015

Time: 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Location: Shaw Conference Centre

Cost: $20

Conference sessions will focus on local actions to reduce climate impacts and greenhouse gas emissions, and feature keynote speeches by Mayor Don Iveson and Majora Carter, American urban revitalization strategist and public radio host. Sessions will appeal to a broad range of participants, from those already involved in mitigating climate change, to those looking to learn more about what they can do.

If you are curious about transitioning energy sources, climate change and building a sustainable future and want to learn more, please join us and be inspired!
