

Measures to combat traffic shortcutting to be implemented in four neighbourhoods

Four Edmonton neighbourhoods have been chosen to take part in the City of Edmonton's Traffic Shortcutting Pilot Project.

The communities – Crestwood, Ormsby Place, Ottewell and Newton – will have a variety of traffic calming measures installed to dissuade drivers from speeding or shortcutting through the neighbourhoods.

Measures include speed humps, speed tables, digital traffic feedback signs, and in the case of Ormsby Place, restricting through access on 188 Street at 69 Avenue.

The installations of the traffic calming measures began September 26, 2015 and all installations should be complete by mid-October. Feedback will be gathered from neighbourhood residents to evaluate the project.
