

Let's talk design, Edmonton

Join the City of Edmonton at our Let's Talk Design, the second event in the Great Ideas, Great Cityspeaker series.

This talk features Ken Greenberg, author of Walking Home: The Life Lessons of a City Builder. He will discuss how good urban design creates spaces where people want to live, work and play, and will showcase design successes in Edmonton and examples from beyond our city that can inspire us.

Date: Thursday, November 26, 2015
Time: Doors open at 5:30 p.m., talk at 6 p.m.
Location: 16th Floor, EPCOR Tower (10423 101 St NW)

Urban design focuses on the arrangement, shape, appearance and functionality of urban public spaces. Good urban design creates places for people that are attractive, memorable, as well as functional. With this talk, the City wants to elevate and champion the practice of urban design in Edmonton.

The Great Ideas, Great Cityspeaker series is all about sparking new conversations about city building with Edmontonians.
