

Urban Recycler: your friendly guide to handling waste

May 2, 2016

Edmonton residents will start receiving important waste-handling information in their mailboxes this week.

Ever wondered whether items such as batteries, Styrofoam or coffee cups should go in the garbage, recycling bag or to an Eco Station? The Urban Recycler newsletter can help you figure out what waste goes where, including a useful guide that can be removed and kept as a reference tool.

The latest edition of the Urban Recycler features tips to help you reduce your waste and shows how to set it out for collection. An illustration of what happens to your recycling after collection is also included. The newsletter also explains how 'Going Bagless' and leaving the grass clippings on your lawn not only cuts your summer waste in half, but is good for you and good for your lawn..

Edmonton is a leader in sustainable waste management and residents play an essential role by reducing, reusing and recycling their waste. If you have not received your Urban Recycler by May 16, call 311 to have a copy sent, or download it from edmonton.ca/waste.
