

Discover a lost world at the Muttart Conservatory

July 6, 2016

What's that moving through the ferns? In the Jurassic Journey feature pyramid display, the Muttart Conservatory has created a world of ancient plants and fossilized wood, where dinosaurs are hiding in every corner. The Prehistoric Pyramids event on July 10 will give kids a chance to make their own fossils and meet an assortment of snakes, geckos and larger lizards from the Edmonton Reptile and Amphibian Society.

Event: Prehistoric Pyramids
Date: Sunday, July 10, 2016
Time: Noon – 4 p.m.
Location: Muttart Conservatory, 9626 96A Street
Admission: Included with regular admission

The Purple Team will be face painting at the Prehistoric Pyramids event, and guests can take home a prehistoric plant.

The Jurassic Journey feature pyramid display runs from July 9 through August 28.

Jazz lovers are invited to the Summer Jazz Concert at the Conservatory on July 14, featuring Mallory Chipman, an innovative jazz vocalist, arranger and composer.
