

Citizens invited to provide input into Heritage Interpretive Plan

October 18, 2016

Citizens are invited to see how the development of the Heritage Interpretive Plan for the City's River Crossing Project in West Rossdale is taking shape.

The Heritage Interpretive Plan will guide how heritage and culture are reflected and communicated throughout the area as it evolves over time. It will honour our collective history, respect Indigenous heritage and culture, and will contribute to the future identity of this special place within Edmonton's river valley.

Come to the November 8, 2016, open house to learn more about the Heritage Interpretive Plan, and provide insight into what is important about the area as well as ideas on how to reflect the area's layered history in the future. Citizens will be able to respond to themes that have emerged from the research and engagement so far.

Date: November 8, 2016

Time: 5 - 8 pm

Location: Downtown Edmonton Community League, 10042 - 103 Street

The Heritage Interpretive Plan is expected to be complete in early 2017 and will serve as one of building blocks for the development of a Business Plan for the area.
