

Trick or Treat the historical way at the John Walter Museum

October 20, 2016

Did you know Edmontonians have been celebrating Halloween since the 1880s, and the haunted holiday's roots go back even further? Join in the fun with All Hallows Eve at John Walter Museum, a free family friendly Halloween event that delves into how our ancestors celebrated the spookiest day of the year.

Date: Sunday, October 23, 2016
Time: 1 - 4 p.m.
Location: John Walter Museum, 9180 Walterdale Hill
(north side of the Kinsmen Sports Centre parking lot)
Cost: Free

Dress up in your favourite costume, historical or present, and trick or treat at the three historical homes to experience treats of the past. Activities will be available throughout the event including making yarn doll witches, bobbing for donuts on a string, Scottish dancing and fortune telling. Get cozy by the bonfire to hear why we celebrate Halloween and the historic traditions it holds.
