Drop in to learn about the City's engaging new policy

April 24, 2017

Citizens are invited to learn about the City of Edmonton's new direction for public engagement at one of 12 drop-in public information sessions. These informal events provide an opportunity for Edmontonians to get more information about the City's newly approved Public Engagement Policy and Framework, which changes the way people contribute to decision making on the City's policies, programs, projects and services.

The public information sessions will take place between May 3 and June 10, 2017 in 12 locations including West Edmonton Mall, the Meadows Community Recreation Centre and the City Market Downtown on 104 street. A full list of dates, times and locations can be found here.

City staff will be available at each event to answer questions about this new approach.
