Edmonton showcases partnerships for Intelligent Community of the Year award

April 27, 2017

Edmonton is among the seven finalists for a global Intelligent Community of the Year award. The Intelligent Community Forum (ICF), a global think-tank helping communities undertake economic and social transformations through technologies, will announce the winner in June after site visits by the ICF's international team of jurors.

On April 26-28, the City of Edmonton welcomes ICF co-founder, Louis Zacharilla, as he visits areas across the city showcasing how Edmonton is a connected, innovative and intelligent city.

Media are invited to learn more about the ICF and Intelligent Community of the Year Award. Louis Zacharilla and representatives from City of Edmonton and NAIT will also be available for interviews.

Date: Friday, April 28, 2017

Time: 11:40 a.m.

Location: NAIT Alternative Energy Technology Centre (Building D in attached campus map) — 11762 106 Street

The ICF recognized Edmonton's work in closing the digital divide, offering innovative programs through the Edmonton Public Library, preparing the future workforce through post secondary institutions and developing the EndPoverty Edmonton strategy.

Tour highlights will be posted on the City of Edmonton's Instagram account. Follow the Intelligent Community tour on Instagram and the hashtag #Top7YEG.
