City celebrates Council Initiative on Public Engagement, recognizing community's key role

May 9, 2017

Media are invited to join the City of Edmonton in celebrating the milestone achievements of the Council Initiative on Public Engagement and recognizing the community members and City staff who worked together to co-create a renewed framework for public engagement at the City. This laid the foundation for a new Public Engagement Policy, which Council approved on April 11. Information about the City's new direction for public engagement will be provided at the event, including staff who will be available for media interviews.

Date: May 10, 2017

Time: 3 - 5 p.m.

Location: City Room in City Hall

Councillors Ben Henderson, Andrew Knack and Michael Walters will be available for interviews. City Manager, Linda Cochrane, will be speaking, along with Carolyn Campbell, Deputy City Manager of Communications and Engagement who will emcee the program. A reception will follow the formal program, and will include an array of multicultural and indigenous foods reflecting our diverse city.
